Smoothing the Transition

Finding the Way in an Important Job

A residency program at Anderson Regional Health System will make the transition from school to work much smoother for new nurses.

“Our schools do a great job at getting nurses prepared to pass their NCLEX test to become a registered nurse, but like many professions, the transition into the work world needs more time,” said Anderson’s Chief Nursing Officer Wes Garrison.

The RN residency is an extensive 12-month program for graduate nurses or licensed Registered Nurses with less than one year of experience. It aims to give them the clinical setting with classroom learning, simulations and clinical orientations with an experienced practitioner.

“This program gives them the opportunity to have different exposure to other areas where they might fit or finding what specialty is right for them,” Garrison said.

Garrison said other institutions have seen success with their residency programs, and he wanted to bring similar opportunities to local students.

“The results I have seen in other hospitals are the gateway to recruiting new nurses, and you are getting the graduates who are committed to you,” Garrison said. “The physicians are happier, the staff is happier, it is just an overall better transition for them. My experience has shown that, so I wanted to bring that here.”

Resident Gabrielle Jones said she was attracted to the program because Anderson is fully committed to training her for a year. That showed her the dedication the hospital has on molding great nurses.

“What I’m looking to get out of this program is to have help with the decision of where I want to be,” Jones said. “I know I want to be in the critical care unit, but the fact that they are allowing me to learn about different areas is a plus.”

“I feel like I’m supposed to be here,” she emphasized. “This is something I really want to do, but it has been great so far.”

4 PLATINUM ~~3~~ YEARS IN A ROW

Award-Winning Heart Care

Anderson Among Nation's Top-Performing Hospitals
for Treatment of Heart Attack Patients

For the fourth year in a row, Anderson Regional Medical Center has received the American College of Cardiology's NCDR Chest Pain—MI Registry Platinum Performance Achievement Award for 2022. Anderson is one of only 240 hospitals nationwide to receive the honor.

The award recognizes Anderson's commitment and success in implementing a higher standard of care for heart attack patients and signifies that Anderson has reached an aggressive goal of treating these patients to standard levels of care as outlined by the American College of Cardiology/American Heart Association clinical guidelines and recommendations.

To receive the NCDR Chest Pain—MI Registry Platinum Performance Achievement Award, Anderson has demonstrated sustained achievement for two consecutive years (2020 and 2021), and performed at the highest level for specific performance measures. Full participation in the registry engages hospitals in a robust quality improvement process using data to drive improvements in adherence to guideline recommendations and overall quality of care provided to heart attack patients.

"Having earned this accreditation for four years in a row is exemplary of the outstanding cardiac partnership between Cardiovascular Institute of the South (CIS) and Anderson Regional Medical Center," said Dr. Wesley Bennett, interventional cardiologist. "The teamwork between local EMS, ER staff, cardiologists, cath lab staff and nursing staff—in combination with our evidence-based and protocol-driven approach—allows us to quickly and efficiently assess patients who require immediate treatment. It also helps to ensure patients are not sent home too early or admitted unnecessarily."

Anderson Expands Pharmacy Services

Partnership Brings Best-in-Class Care to the Region

Annual out-of-pocket costs for specialty medications required to manage chronic diseases such as diabetes, rheumatoid arthritis, hepatitis C, multiple sclerosis and migraines can reach thousands of dollars, making it challenging for patients to afford vital treatments. Many patients also require ongoing support to successfully adhere to their therapy regimens and manage side effects.

In an effort to better serve this patient population, Anderson Regional Health System has announced the launch of a new service for chronic disease patients that integrates a pharmacist into the patient's medical care team. By partnering with Trellis Rx, a leading technology-enabled specialty pharmacy services provider, medication access and regimen are enhanced, leading to measurably better clinical and financial outcomes for the patient.

"Anderson is the only facility within a 150-mile radius to offer this service that can significantly improve a patient's therapy experience. We're excited to expand our pharmacy services to ensure patients have access to best-in-class care close to home," said Holly Moore, PharmD and Director of Pharmacy at Anderson Regional Health System.

The fully integrated, local approach of this new and unique clinical care model ensures patients with chronic and complex conditions receive the personalized, high-touch pharmacy care required to support adherence to treatment plans and improve clinical outcomes.

Pharmacists and pharmacy liaisons are embedded in clinics alongside other medical staff to provide patients the comprehensive, integrated care needed to improve medication access and achieve the best outcomes from their therapies.

To create a seamless experience for patients and their families, pharmacy liaisons manage financial assistance applications, insurance authorizations, medication refills and more. In addition, pharmacists provide medication education, offer ongoing counseling, and monitor clinical outcomes to ensure the improvement of the patient's overall health.

Anderson Regional Health System's chronic disease management and specialty pharmacy services are currently available to rheumatology, pulmonology and gastroenterology patients. Services will be expanded to additional clinics throughout the year.

In celebration of National Cancer Survivor Month, Anderson Regional Cancer Center extends an annual invitation for survivors to put their “Handprints of Hope” on a canvas that is then put on display. This year, 140 survivors put their handprints on the canvas, representing a combined 1,027 years of survivorship.

One of the participants said this:

“I went for my infusion today and while there went by and placed my handprint on the canvas. Each handprint represents a cancer victim, but also represents the hope that person has of beating the cancer that they have, or that they have already beaten. When you are the one placing your handprint, you look at the others that are already on the canvas and think of the trials each person endured. It makes you humble that you are there at that moment in time, and thankful for the others that were there before you, and for those that will come after you. No one wishes to have cancer in their lives, but for those of us that do, we are appreciative for Anderson Regional Cancer Center and their caring staff. Because of them, we have the hope

Career Path for Nurses

Town Hall meetings were held during the last week of June for the Registered Nursing staff to give information about the new “Clinical Ladder” for RNs. Dr. Wes Garrison, Chief Nursing Officer, is pictured while speaking about the program. Registered Nurses can find information regarding the clinical ladder career path in “Policy Stat” and on the Infocenter under the “Nursing” tab.

Celebrating Health Information Week

Anderson recently celebrated Health Information Professionals Week in our Medical Records and Coding departments. This team works to ensure patients’ health information data is accurate and secure.

Anderson Awards Nursing Scholarships

The desire to make a difference – and to emulate the care given to a loved one – prompted Meridian Community College Associate Degree Nursing Program Student Chiquita Slaughter to study nursing.

As she was growing up, Slaughter's dad got cancer and later succumbed to the disease. "I watched how the hospice nurses would come and not only tend to my father's medical needs, but also gave my mom and grandparents their shoulders to lean on," she said in explaining her desire to become a registered nurse.

Today, the 32-year-old Philadelphia resident is a third-semester Associate Degree Nursing (ADN) Program student at Meridian Community College, one of seven students selected for Anderson Regional Health System scholarships. Each comes with a $2,500 honorarium.

For 34 years, ADN students at the College have benefited from scholarships from the Meridian-based health care system. This year Anderson awarded seven scholarships to full-time students who post grade B or better in their nursing courses and a cumulative grade point average of a 3.0 on a 4.0 scale. Faculty evaluations and personal essays are also used in the selection process.

At a luncheon honoring the students and guests, John Anderson, CEO of Anderson Regional Health System, said the need for nurses has never been greater. In Mississippi in 2019, there were over 2000 vacancies in nursing; two years later, that number has surpassed 3,000 vacancies. "You have a tremendous opportunity," he said to the students.

Nurses follow a calling and often show characteristics of being tenacious, compassionate, and driven; the Anderson scholarship recipients are nursing students who demonstrate those qualities, noted MCC President Dr. Thomas Huebner.

“This scholarship will help tremendously,” Slaughter, a single mother of two children who has worked as a practical nurse for four years and a certified nurse assistant for 10 years, said. “I’ll be able to focus more on my studies and not worry so much about my tuition.”

Another MCC third-semester student and scholarship recipient, Heather Streeter, 39, from Quitman, discovered her passion for nursing after watching her mother and aunts care for her 102-year-old-great-grandmother. Streeter, too, started her nursing path as a certified nurse assistant and a licensed practical nurse.

Slaughter received the Dr. Jeff Anderson Scholarship. Dr. Jeff Anderson founded Anderson Infirmary in 1928. At that time, the hospital had room to accommodate 30 patients and was staffed by three physicians and a handful of nurses. Dr. Anderson’s vision for the future, and his commitment to providing quality medical care for the residents in East Central Mississippi and West Central Alabama are the foundation of what has now grown to be Anderson Regional Health System, a 400-bed medical center with over 160 physicians representing more than 38 specialties. The scholarship was created in 2004 to honor Dr. Anderson.

Makayla Thompson, 19, of Bailey, was awarded the Dr. W. J. Anderson III Scholarship. Dr. Anderson was the son of Dr. William J. Anderson and the grandson of hospital founder Dr. Jeff Anderson. Dr. Anderson was a general surgeon from 1962 until his retirement in 1998. Dr. Anderson served as president and chairman of the board of directors at JARMC until his death in October 2002. This scholarship was created in 2003 to honor Dr. Anderson’s visionary leadership to the hospital.

Abbey L. Sistrunk, 21, of Meridian, received the Reuben S. Johnson Memorial Scholarship. Johnson began his 47-year service to Anderson Regional Medical Center in 1947. He was president and chairman of the board for 38 years. He was instrumental in the successful transformation of the hospital from a small infirmary to what became Anderson Regional Medical Center. Johnson also served as the internal management consultant from 1976 until his death in 1994. The scholarship was created in 2007 to honor Johnson’s many accomplishments.

Receiving the Dr. William J. Anderson Jr. Scholarships was Rodney Senseney, 26, of Meridian. Dr. Anderson was the son of Dr. Jeff Anderson, the founder of the hospital. Dr. Anderson served as a general surgeon at Jeff Anderson Regional Medical Center. The scholarship was created in 1988, a year after his passing, to honor the many accomplishments of Dr. Anderson.

Streeter is the recipient of the Dr. Jeff Hollingsworth Scholarship. Dr. Hollingsworth, the grandson of Dr. Jeff Anderson, was a cardiovascular surgeon in Jackson and was instrumental in getting the Cardiac Catheterization program started in Meridian. Dr. Hollingsworth passed away in 1986. This scholarship was established in 1988 to honor Dr. Hollingsworth.

Danielle Chambliss, 26, of Meridian, received the William J. Gunn, Esquire, Scholarship. Gunn began his service to the medical center in 1965 as secretary to the board of directors and general counsel for the hospital. In 1967, he became a member of the board of directors and continued his faithful service until his death in August 2001. The scholarship was created in 2002 to honor Mr. Gunn’s service to the hospital.

Camryn Parten, 20, of Collinsville, was the Anderson Board of Directors Scholarship recipient. The board works behind the scenes to ensure that Dr. Jeff Anderson’s vision, to give quality health care to the people of our region, is carried out. Each member brings expertise in a different area that enhances the quality of care given to patients. These individuals work tirelessly and with very little recognition for their labor. The scholarship was created in 2012 to recognize the valuable contributions of each board member.

DAISY AWARDS

Brandon Hamilton, RN

Congratulations to Brandon Hamilton, Registered Nurse in the Cardiac Care Unit, who was presented with the March DAISY Award. One of Brandon's patients wrote his nomination which read: "Brandon was amazing from the moment I was transferred to CCU. He could tell that I was in distress and did everything he could to make me feel at ease and to try to get my breathing back to normal. What worked was simply his hand on my arm telling me to breath. It doesn't sound like much, but that helped so much since I was alone. Brandon was so very good, talking with my brother to let him know what was going on. If not for Brandon, I am sure that I would have been placed on the ventilator. When he returned to work (after not being on shift), he was excited to tell me how proud he was of me and how far I had come. Brandon goes above and beyond for his patients and explains things to make them understand what is happening during the process, which makes it so much easier to relax and breath. He is an amazing nurse and very comforting to his patients. He deserves as many awards as they can give him!"

Brantley Massey, RN

Congratulations to Brantley Massey, Registered Nurse in the Emergency Department, who was presented with the April DAISY Award. One of Brantley's patients wrote her nomination which read: "I was brought into the ER with chest pains and difficulty breathing. Upon my arrival, I knew Brantley was a gem. When they were triaging me and asked my weight, I begrudgingly told them. Brantley knew it was uncomfortable for me in a room full, so she said, 'Honey, that's not bad' and told me what she weighed. From that point on, she treated me as if I were family. In all my visits to an ER, I have to say I have never been kept so informed of every step of my treatment and checked on every few minutes. Brantley is definitely an asset to your Emergency Department!"

Kim Thomas, RN

Congratulations to Kim Thomas, Registered Nurse in the Telemetry Department, who was presented with the May DAISY Award. The family of one of Kim's patients wrote her nomination which read: "Where do we start? From the moment we got to the floor, Kim was so helpful and kind. She was so bubbly and happy when she walked in the room – it lifts your spirit. She was encouraging and supportive through the whole process. She spent extra time explaining what was going to take place during and after heart surgery. She knew we were in total shock of the outcome of the heart cath. Her words of encouragement and compassion went far beyond just being a nurse. We have found a new friend. She was off the day of my husband's surgery, but offered to come and stay with him if it would make us feel more at ease. She put her cell phone number in my phone just in case we needed her. I called her several times to ask questions or advice. She brought a gift and gave it to my husband to brighten his day. She was considerate of his privacy when prepping him for his procedure. She is just so compassionate. A nurse can be just a nurse, but Kim goes the extra mile to help. Kim was put in our path to help us through this journey. She was such a blessing to us. A true nurse has a heart for her patients."

BEE AWARDS

Linda Brooks

Congratulations to Linda Brooks, Patient Care Tech in the Intensive Care Unit, for being the inaugural recipient of the BEE Award. The BEE award honors exceptional team members who go above and beyond – “Being Extraordinary Everyday.”

One of Linda’s coworkers wrote her nomination which read: “For the duration of my training period, I have been trained by Linda Brooks, PCT, in the ICU. From the moment I met Mrs. Linda I could tell that she was passionate about what she does and she truly has a heart for helping others and the staff in the ICU. She is dedicated to patients’ needs and goes the extra mile to see that they are given the utmost care. In addition, she is the best ‘helping hand’ for all of the nurses in the ICU. The nurses do not have to ask Mrs. Linda if she can help out with something — she already is doing it! She has been a wonderful team member for me to follow. I feel more than confident fulfilling my role as a patient care tech in the CCU because of Mrs. Linda.”

Ashley Loper

Congratulations to Ashley Loper, buyer for Anderson Pharmacy and Gift Shop, who was presented with the BEE Award for May. The BEE award honors exceptional team members who go above and beyond – “Being Extraordinary Everyday.”

One of Ashley’s coworkers wrote her nomination which read: “Ashley is always doing her best and going out of her way to help customers and patients who come to Anderson Pharmacy, whether it be for medication, medical supplies or gifts. Recently, there has been a nationwide formula shortage. Ashley, along with Pharmacist Erin Dewease, reached out to the public (via Facebook) to take requests of formula needed in our area. She was able to contact pharmacy vendors and have several different brands of formula delivered overnight to support mothers and babies in our area. Formula is not something that Anderson Pharmacy normally carries — but knowing there was a local shortage, Ashley went out of her way to find a way to help those in need. This is not the first time she has reached out to help others — and I know it won’t be the last. She is a great employee and staff member of Anderson Regional Health System.”

In recognition of National Alzheimer's and Brain Awareness Month, Dr. Zaineb Daud from Anderson Neurology Center served as a guest speaker at a Community Health Improvement Network (CHIN) Lunch and Learn. Dr. Daud spoke about the early signs of dementia, treatment options and caretaker support.

In our continuing Lunch & Learn series, Nurse Practitioner Carmen Matzek presented a session in April at the Meridian Activity Center about foot health awareness. April is National Foot Health Awareness Month and according to the American Podiatric Medical Association, approximately 20 percent of the U.S. population has at least one foot problem annually. The event was well attended, and Carmen was able to answer many questions from the participants.

We ran a story in a previous issue about students in Jamestown, New York, who painted "heart" rocks and sent them to our front-line workers in appreciation for what they were handling during the pandemic. After the sweet gifts arrived, many of our staff members sent notes of appreciation to the students. Their teacher, Cynthia Spirit, sent this follow up in response:

"As the school year wraps up and I view all the contacts from your hospital, I am reflecting on how gracious the various departments were in sending notes and pictures... my students got better than I hoped for with this project. They remain very pleased with the results."

Sensory Friendly Day
Anderson Outpatient Pediatric Rehabilitation was on-hand at the Mississippi Children's Museum - Meridian for a "Sensory Friendly Day." The event was designed for children with sensory needs and featured reduced stimuli with smaller crowds, lower lighting and sound.

On behalf of the Clarke County Sheriff's Department, I would like to express my appreciation for the work done by Robbie McKee. In a profession where we are not able to take much time off it is greatly appreciated for someone like Robbie to take his skill set out to our first responders and to help them continue serving our communities. Robbie is a great asset to his profession and we look forward to continuing to work with him in the future. We thank you for your vision and willingness to allow Robbie to pursue this endeavor to reach out and help our first responders.
